This is a country shaped by war, by dictatorship and by terrorists. A land of contradictions and dreams; a country that has given us some of the world's greatest musicians, poets and sportsmen. It's a region that has been ravaged by conflict and is currently one of the most important and volatile battlegrounds of the 21st century. Since coming to power in 2013, Pakistani PM Nawaz Sharif has made terrorism and extremism his central policy goal. His Government has repeatedly blamed Afghanistan for inciting terrorism. But is it really the Afghans who have the most to answer for? How can he address extremism and terrorism without starting an argument that is potentially cataclysmic? In the wake of the Peshawar school massacre, we've been back into the abyss of terrorism and extremism. We will meet some brave and determined individuals who are trying to reach out to young Muslims to prevent terrorism and radicalisation. In the heart of the city, Rawalpindi, I'll talk to those who want an alternative to extremism and war and seek peace and reconciliation. In the capital, Islamabad, I'll meet those who are fighting the Taliban and the Lashkar-e-Taiba. They say there's a madman running Pakistan; we will meet those who have seen the Taliban's war and have fought them. This is a country that wants change but is deeply mired in the same conflicts and divisions that shaped the world's last colonial power. This is a country where every major city is being transformed but some people are losing out. How can we seek peace when so many are facing exclusion? This is a region that has seen great empires come and go, leaving their mark on the shape of the cities they built. Today, 2d92ce491b
