In general, the free and open source (FOSS) tools are simpler and less versatile than their commercial counterparts. With that said, the quality of many FOSS tools is improving all the time. However, there are plenty of cases where the commercial tools are simply better for the task, and so you need to know what you are looking for. The most common FOSS image editing programs are: * GIMP: www.gimp.org * Inkscape: www.inkscape.org * Krita: www.krita.org * Pinta: * GNU Image Manipulation Program: www.gimpmag.com * PhotoShop touch: www.adobe.com/apps/phoneshop/ There are also a number of image cataloging programs that work well for managing large collections of images, such as Picasa Web, Flickr Album Viewer, and the Wikimedia Commons. There are also a number of alternative color space tools. A list of some of these is included on the pages of the "Color" section. ## Digital Signal Processing (DSP) Digital signal processing is the science of manipulating signals in digital form. There are many hardware and software tools for this purpose. In this field, you can find a large number of tools, including the following: * Digital audio workstation (DAW): PowerSonic: www.powersonic.com * Digital audio workstation (DAW) application: Pure Data: A number of free DAW software applications exist. These are software tools that run on a Windows computer, and they tend to be used for digital audio editing. Most of them are included in the Windows operating system, but a number of these are available separately as well. These are commonly referred to as "digital audio workstations" or "DAWs." It turns out you don't need stat projections to find out that K-Rod's replacement has been awful since 2008. The Royals are more valuable and more wins above replacement than they were when Randa Jelenski picked up the torch, but basically the same. So that's the answer to the eternal question: how long can things stay the same in MLB? The answer's always the same. Not often, anyway. You guys just seem to find a season in which that's broken down the further it goes, but it's always true, really. Maybe tonight will be the night. These are the numbers I've found after two full months of data: Marlins: Strength: Danny Espinosa hits lefties better than righties, but righties are hitting his pitches better in the last month. Weakness: Evan Gattis is hurt, so the losing may be continuing. Upcoming Starters: Logan Morrison, Javier Baez, Alex Gonzalez Bullpen depth: Steve Cishek, Heath Bell, Rex Brothers, Tom Koehler Deadly: Jose Fernandez, Josh Johnson, R.A. Dickey Gio Gonzalez, Colorado Rockies Strength: Gonzalez's fastball reaches up into the high 90s and has topped out at 97-98. Weakness: He's not missing many bats; Bautista and Desmond have hit him and other starters better. Upcoming Starters: Drew Pomeranz, TBD, TBD Bullpen depth: TBD, TBD, TBD Deadly: TBD Chris Sale, White Sox Strength: Sale's 96-97 mph heater is filthy. Weakness: He's going to let a lot of contact go through, which is something that's not going to get better as he gets older. Upcoming Starters: TBD Bullpen depth: TBD, TBD Deadly: TBD Jake Arrieta, Cubs Strength: Arrieta is healthy and the Cubs are winning. Weakness: His fastball ticked up a mile per hour from August 19th to September 6th, but he has that soft, bumpy breaking ball that's not really an out
