Field of the Invention This invention relates to a method and apparatus for detecting the end of a fibre optic cable, and more particularly to such a method and apparatus which can be used to detect the end of a fibre optic cable where the end of the cable is inaccessible to visual inspection. 2. Description of the Prior Art In the laying of fibre optic cables, it is desirable to avoid paying out cable for unnecessarily long distances. Accordingly, a method and apparatus is disclosed in WO91/06520 in which a cable of known length is laid between a landing station and an array of light sources which operate in pairs. When the end of the cable is reached by the light sources in the array, for example by a light source being switched off, the terminating end of the cable can be detected. When fibre optic cable is used for traffic links, it is important to be able to detect when the length of the cable needs to be increased, for example to allow for the running of new traffic. In such cases, the replacement of the cable requires careful planning in order to avoid any disruption in the traffic flow. Accordingly, it would be desirable to be able to detect the end of the cable by a process which is independent of physical inspection of the cable.Q: How to use ManyToMany field in ModelForm
