Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a method for manufacturing a semiconductor device having a stacked capacitor. 2. Description of the Related Art As the integration density of semiconductor devices increases, the spaces between wires constituting a wiring pattern are reduced, and the resistance of the wires is increased. Accordingly, to reduce the resistance of the wires, a multilayer wiring structure in which insulating layers are formed between the wires is employed. In such a multilayer wiring structure, capacitors have also been formed between the wires to avoid the influence of the increase in the wire resistance. With respect to a conventional method for forming a capacitor, reference is made to Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 2002-325529. In a conventional method for forming a capacitor between wires, a silicon oxide film is formed on both surfaces of a semiconductor substrate. Subsequently, after forming a contact hole in the silicon oxide film, polysilicon is deposited d0c515b9f4
